

HK-47 on dealing with bullies

Written by The Old Republic

Tuesday, 04 July 2006 00:16 - Last Updated Tuesday, 04 July 2006 01:11

Revan: HK-47 a little boy in a school yard far far away has a bully problem. What do you suggest?

Hk-47: Explanation: the miniature organic is simply looking for trouble and needs to be blasted. That may be wishful thinking on my part, master.

Revan: I agree with your statement to a point. Most bullies are just cowards, if the little boy stands up to him, then the bully will leave him alone. If the little boy needs a weapons, his best weapon is not a blaster but an angry overprotective mother. Not even a sith can face one and live!

Hk-47: "As you command Master, but i would be very swift and violent in dealing with the little Meatbag..."